

Follow-up of the Conference on the Future of Europe – one year on

#EUDemocracy

16 June 2023

The Conference on the Future of Europe (CoFE) concluded its work with 49 proposals and 326 measures proposed by its plenary. Its legacy lives on through the follow-up of these proposals and the embedding of deliberative democracy in EU policymaking.

The Commission adopted its Communication “Putting vision into concrete action” on 17 June 2022 charting out the ways for bringing to life the proposals of the Conference. It lists over 500 proposals and actions that are part of the Commission’s follow-up.

The Commission work programme for 2023 is driven by the Conference’s results. Out of the 43 new initiatives announced for this year, 35 are either directly or indirectly following up on the proposals.

On 2 December 2022 the three institutions hosted a feedback event with the participants of the European Citizens’ Panels, as well as various other participants of the Conference Plenary.

Not all CoFE proposals are within the Commission’s competence, and some may be best taken up by the other EU institutions, by Member States or by local and regional authorities.

One year after the Conference, the Commission has acted on close to 95% of those Conference measures that are within the Commission’s competence and in accordance with the Treaties.

Some of the proposals would require Treaty change, but new reforms and policies should not be mutually exclusive to discussions on Treaty change. President von der Leyen in her State of the Union address on 14 September 2022 has supported the European Parliaments’ call for a European Convention.

The Commission is also embedding citizens’ participation in its policymaking, which is itself a key follow-up of one of the Conference proposals.

“[This is why] the Conference on the Future of Europe was so important. It was a sneak peek of a different kind of citizens’ engagement, well beyond election day. The Citizens’ Panels that were central to the Conference will now become a regular feature of our democratic life.”

Three new generation of citizens' panels have already been organised making recommendations ahead of certain key proposals.

FOOD WASTE

The citizens' panel on food waste took place between December 2022 and February 2023 with 147 participants. They worked on 23 recommendations ahead of the Commission's proposal on the Revision of food waste and textile aspects of the EU waste framework Directive, which is planned for adoption on 5 July 2023.

The citizens' panel on virtual worlds took place between February and April this year with 140 participants. They worked on 23 recommendations ahead of the Commission's initiative on virtual worlds, such as the metaverse, which is planned for adoption on 11 July 2023.

LEARNING MOBILITY

The citizens' panel on learning mobility took place between March and April this year with 142 participants. They worked on 21 recommendations for a Council Recommendation on updated learning mobility framework, which will be adopted in autumn this year.

"A gathering of citizens is democracy in action. Look at how valuable it is to bring citizens to the very heart of policymaking.

It is also about the trust between citizens and the institutions that serve them. This is why the European Commission is very proud to be the first executive body anywhere to introduce citizen panels as an integral part of the designing of policy. We want to lead by example."

Dubravka Šuica, Vice-President for Democracy and Demography

We are also strengthening our online engagement by developing our Have Your Say platform into a hub showcasing the different ways in which citizens can engage with the Commission.
